FORELINK LIMITED has over 35 years experience with CNC machine tools and is at the forefront of providing a high calibre of CNC programmer training services.

CNC is now an important part of everyday life in the machine shop and to get the best out of your CNC machines certain disciplines have to be adhered too.

It is the aim of the programming course to show you these disciplines together with sufficient knowledge to quickly and competently produce components on your CNC machine tools.

The course criteria assumes no previous knowledge and starts at the very beginning right through to simple macro routines and we have found that even experienced programmers have gained something from this complete and in depth course which can be taken at your own Speed through this interactive media.

There are three courses available and all are supplied on CD ROM in PDF Format in three versions.
